

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Lori Mosca, M.D., M.P.H., Ph.D., is Professor of Medicine and Director of Preventive Cardiology at NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital/Columbia University Medical Center. Dr. Mosca is the founder and Director of the Columbia Center for Heart Disease Prevention in midtown Manhattan and is listed among New York's Best Doctors and America's Top Doctors. She is author of Heart to Heart: A Personal Plan for Creating a Heart-Healthy Family, published by HCI Books. Dr. Mosca received her medical degree from SUNY Upstate Medical University in Syracuse, and her Masters in Public Health and Ph.D. in Epidemiology from Columbia University. She completed a Residency in Internal Medicine at Syracuse and a Fellowship in Preventive Cardiology at Columbia University.

Dr. Mosca's area of clinical expertise is preventive cardiology and women's health. Her research focuses on family centered interventions to prevent heart disease. She is Principal Investigator of a National Institutes of Health (NIH) funded study to evaluate the role of cardiac caregivers to improve patient outcomes. Dr. Mosca currently holds a National Institutes of Health (NIH) Mid-Career Award in Applied Preventive Cardiology Research.

Dr. Mosca is Past President of the American Society for Preventive Cardiology, Past Chair of the American Heart Association (AHA) Council on Epidemiology and Prevention and served on the National Board of Directors. She currently chairs the AHA Expert Panel for the Evidence-Based Guidelines for the Prevention of Cardiovascular Disease Prevention in Women, and serves on the Institute of Medicine's Committee on Women's Health Research. Dr. Mosca recently co-chaired the NIH Strategic Planning Committee on Coronary Heart Disease and the NIH Task Force on Research in Prevention Cardiovascular Diseases. She was the recipient of the 2004 Women's Day Red Dress Award, the Upstate Medical University Outstanding Young Alumni Award, and the American Medical Women's Association 2007 Women in Science Award. She has participated in several national news programs and documentaries and is an invited lecturer at many national and international scientific programs. Dr. Mosca serves on the editorial boards for Preventive Cardiology and Circulation: Cardiovascular Quality and Outcomes, and is a peer reviewer for several journals including The New England Journal of Medicine and the Journal of the American Medical Association. She has authored more than 200 scientific publications. Dr. Mosca has 2 sons, is the wife of a pediatric cardiac surgeon, is a competitive triathlete, and Hawaii Ironman finisher.